reached Winnipeg today. Fugate says that the twenty-five who escaped were all more or less injured. The tragedy occurred in British Columbia west of Fort George.

For a time the searchers for the Winnipeg say they were kept at the immediate vicinity of the fort. A change in the location of the work came at the crossing of the Fraser. The one hundred men were taken from shore in a frail craft which became unmanageable. It was dashed in pieces on a rock in the middle of the river and its human cargo thrown into the water.

The greatest confusion prevailed. Swimming in the raging waters was next to impossible and but twenty-five of the one hundred reached shore, entered and bruised. Pugliese reached Edmonton hospital and after recovering sufficiently came to Winnipeg and applied to the immigration officers for aid.

REPUBLICAN PARTY HOPELESSLY SPLIT

G. O. P. RANKS IN STATE SEPARATED ON MANY IMPORTANT MATTERS.

DIVIDED INTO FACTIONS

Four Distinct Elements to Be Found Which Apparently Do Not Ever Mean to Unite.

(By Bob Acres.)

While there is lots of discord in the democratic ranks over the distribution of federal patronage, it is not a mark to the internal dissension that has divided the republican ranks. There is about as much harmony in the republican ranks as there is in the midnight back fence concert of various Tommies and Marias. The worst of it all is that this fight has been going on for years and is no nearer solution now than it was when it began, and strange to say, that whenever there is such a bitter fight in their opponents' ranks, the democrats start a ruction all of their own.

First there is Robert L. La Follette, senior senator from this commonwealth. He is the real boss of the republican party. When he does not like what the national republican convention does or does not do, he sues in his tent like Achilles and refuses to don his armor and go forth to battle. He may perhaps have a few campaign speeches in favor of some local candidate, some favorite of his just as he does when he goes to aid McGovern, fearful unless the so-called republican candidate carried the state his whole machine would be busted, but he refrains from endorsing any policies he has not promulgated.

Then there is Francis E. McGovern. He started out as a La Follette subject, but he has grown to consider himself greater than his creator and would usurp his power. McGovern ran for United States senator several years ago and was defeated for the nomination. But he has not given up. You all know that Stephenson made millions in lumber and aspired to the seat in the United States senate in 1899 when there was a mad scramble for the job. Here he opened headquarters at Madison and they say, whisper it though, spent lots of money. When he did not get it and Quarles did and then Stephenson began furnishing La Follette with his financial sinews of war.

But to come back to McGovern. McGovern lost out to Uncle Ike in the senatorial race and went back to Milwaukee to practice law. Davidson was elected a La Follette leader and upon a time, but when La Follette went to the senate, holding onto his office as governor for months after election and keeping "Jim" from the executive office the longer he thought he should have been kept from the plum duff, he did not like it and he became one of the anti-Las, along with others whom La Follette uses and then throws away like a card. Well, McGovern then cast his eye upon the gubernatorial chair and went out and got it. He defeated a mixed field of starters at the primary and then added at the last minute by a check from a Milwaukee brewery that broke faith with Fairchild, the so-called conservative republican or stalwart candidate. It was easy for McGovern to win the election and as governor he held the La Follette machine in line.

But now comes the sad part of the tale. La Follette aspired for the presidential nomination and picked his state delegation for the great work at the national convention carefully. Houser, his former secretary of state, was to head it and to give it of the nerves of the state and to give it a better. Then there was Henry Cochems, a bright young man whom La Follette had picked up while he was a student in the state university, given him a seat in the capital and then a spell binder of great worth Cochems has aspired to a seat in congress in Milwaukee two years before. He was sure of it, but strange to say, Henry Cochems was not exactly feeling just right about that deal. He thought that "Bob" should have helped him. Bob had other irons in the fire, and Cochems was a man of a different sort. He was a spell binder of great worth Cochems was a member of the Wisconsin delegation, so was McGovern, and weeks before the convention in Chicago had been concocted for McGovern to be made chairman. Cochems did not forget La Follette's desertion two years before and when the time came to vote the revolt he was there, so was McGovern. La Follette did not want any break in his delegation and his sworn champion, Houser, tried his best to stop it, but was unable to do so. Of course the plot failed, but a break had come. Cochems jumped clear across the fence and allied himself with Roosevelt and the Bull Mooseers and took with him a whole lot of the faithful.

I have always had my opinion that La Follette did not try to stem this desertion. He just let the leaders go ahead and hang themselves. He wanted control of the republican organization in the state and to do it he had to do some tall thinking. He knew that Taft was going to lose, that Wilson would win. With the split in the ranks of the republicans it looked as if the bull would go to carry Wisconsin and perhaps the democratic state ticket as well. So Achilles La Follette came out of his tent and urged the faithful to support McGovern for the governorship.

Now McGovern had not openly gone over to the bull mooseers, but he had been clever enough to prevent their putting a candidate in the field against him and so with the desertions of the Aylward-Davis crowd, from the democrats, he won out and was re-elected governor. The state republican organization was saved and when the time came for the legislature to meet it was discovered that La Follette, not McGovern, controlled affairs. Here is the trouble between La Follette and McGovern. Here are the elements of discord in the republican ranks. The third is the bull moose element who favor McGovern for the United States senate, who oppose La Follette, who oppose every thing and everybody but their fearless leader, Roosevelt, who has them all hypnotized.

The fourth element is not of much consequence. They used to be strong but they have lost numbers. That is the old stalwart crowd. Time was when they controlled affairs but they lost out. Bad management perhaps, had judgment certainly. Their end began when they turned down Stephenson for the senate in '98 and supplied their enemy with the money of the lumber king. They made other mistakes. Chief among them was their failure to appreciate the fact that the bull moose men, the party demanded some recognition. They continued to hand the plums around to the old guard regardless of protests to the contrary and as result these young men allied themselves with La Follette. Some have become anti's by failing to obey the orders of the boss and feeling the whip of his disapproval, but in their places La Follette has found new subjects, raised new leaders and those outside the pale against without leadership and merely fighting minority.

Here are four factions all supposedly republicans, but all working at odds. The situation in a nutshell is that La Follette will pick any man for governor, will name his choice for United States senator and then will sit back and let the lieutenant do the work. If there is any danger of his favorite winning, it is safe to say that the democrats have a chance. It is whispered, very softly though, that in return for the desertion of the Aylward-Davis crowd from Karel in the gubernatorial campaign two years ago he would be willing to see Aylward win out the senatorship and it is certain he would support his opponent happened to be McGovern.

McGovern has not the support of the La Follette leaders. He has been forced to build up his own machine, but he has a pretty good one at that. He has a party of his own, the really believe he is a republican, he has the tacit support of the former republicans, who are now built up as his army. He has a name and his own inspectors. They are an army in themselves. However, some of these will desert him if given the quiet tip by La Follette. It is strange the hold this man has over his followers. Even his stalwart enemies have to admit that he is one great little general.

When La Follette sought to make a revenue choice governor, Davidson, who wanted another term, he campaigned the state in the interests of Lenroot and lost his first fight since he became Governor of the G. O. P. in Wisconsin. This was a part of history in that fight that comes right home to Rock county. One of La Follette's strongest henchmen in his long fight was the late Dr. Evan Roberts of Janesville. He was caught out early and late in a hostile territory. He also supported Davidson when he ran for governor and in return was appointed state auditor. Roberts was a man who liked La Follette. The split between the two was a hard blow to him. He could not follow the lead of La Follette and go out and work against Davidson and he could not work for Davidson and go out against La Follette. He was not well and would not even his friends knowing he would die, he decided that an operation was necessary. It would be him up during the campaign at any rate and give him a good excuse. He was operated on and died. Rock county lost a good citizen and both Davidson and La Follette faithful friends.

Whether Stephenson will run for the senate again remains to be seen. His last experience was costly enough. But I just think the same old lumberman would like to get another whack at friend Bob whom he fondly points out to friends down in Washington, as the man who cost him a small fortune. It is uncertain whether he would be a member of the class of support he had when he ran six years ago. There has been a slight change in the general temper of his supporters and it is possible he would find it hard work to win out.

Meanwhile there is a lot of noll-talk about the state capital. While the democrats gathered in Milwaukee last night, the republicans gathered in the city of Janesville. The class of support he had when he ran six years ago. There has been a slight change in the general temper of his supporters and it is possible he would find it hard work to win out.

I have given this preamble to the Wisconsin situation because some time I am going to talk on a subject another combination against the whole regime. This is a new and if you understand the mix-up in both the democratic and republican ranks you will appreciate what this new combination might do.

CITY ISSUES ORDER TO REMOVE PILINGS

COUNCIL SERVES NOTICES ON PROPERTY-OWNERS WHOSE BUILDINGS ON BRIDGE WERE BURNED.

PASS NEW ORDINANCES

Regulations for Fire and Police Departments Including New Wage Scale Are Given Final Reading.

At the meeting of the city council yesterday afternoon, a resolution was passed ordering the owners of property on the Milwaukee street bridge, which was destroyed by the fire of April 1st, 1913, to remove the timbers, piers, and other debris from the bridge river as soon as to clean the banks of waste material which may have collected as a result of the fire. The notices were served on George G. Sutherland, Edward E. Carpenter and the Myers estate by Chief of Police Ransom late Tuesday afternoon. According to the resolution the property-owners are given ten days to conform to the orders of the resolution, after that time, if the city will not have been done, the city will undertake the same, charging the cost expense.

The council took the attitude that the timbers and piles which marked the site of the bridge were not only unsightly and of no use to any one, but that they might offer a serious impediment to the current of the stream, especially in time of high water, and might have a damming effect on the water power at the Monterey dam. Arrangements can readily be made with the Gould Construction company to secure the removal of the obstructions at a slight expense.

Text of Resolution.
Following is the text of the resolution as passed by the council yesterday:

Resolved by the mayor and council of the city of Janesville, that the city clerk of the city of Janesville forthwith cause a notice to be served upon the owners of property abutting on the easterly side of the Milwaukee street bridge across the Rock river in said city, directing the said owners to remove, within ten days, all of the piers, pilings, and timbers, now located on the water power at the Monterey dam. Arrangements can readily be made with the Gould Construction company to secure the removal of the obstructions at a slight expense. The three ordinances affecting the fire and police departments and including a new wage scale for the employees, were advanced to the third reading and were passed by the council on Tuesday afternoon. The ordinances provide for the appointment of two captains in the fire department, another for two captains in the police department, appointments to be made by the city clerk, and the following salaries: first assistant engineer, $150 per annum; second assistant engineer, $80 per annum; two at $50 each, $300 per annum; one mechanical, $300 per annum; regular firemen, first year, $750 per annum; regular firemen, after first year, $840 per annum; call men, $120.

"In the police department: two captains, each, $900 per annum; patrolmen, first year, $780 per annum; patrolmen, after first year, $840 per annum. "Section 2. Any and all ordinances or resolutions fixing any other or different compensation for men employed in either of said departments are hereby expressly repealed. "Section 3. This ordinance shall be in force and take effect from and after ten days following its passage. "Other minor business matters which came before the council included the report of the municipal court for the month of December, which showed a collection of $206.67 in fines and $26.79 in fees; the monthly report of the chief of police which indicated a total of 80 arrests, of which 48 were taken to court and 32 discharged from the chief of police, Councilman Milmore and City Engineer Kerch were appointed a committee to sell the piles taken out at the Milwaukee street bridge. Bills for two weeks were passed on and allowed.

STAGE HERO NOWADAYS A "CROOK."

All the world loves a lover, it has been said, but apparently a goodly portion of the feminine population of the globe loves a "crook." Mr. Lambert, who plays the part of "Joe Garson" the bad man in "Within the Law," which comes to the Myers Theater Tuesday, January 13th, for a return engagement with the same cast as before, seems to be quite as much a matinee idol as the more approved type of stage hero, despite the fact that his list of crimes in the play includes almost everything from theft to murder. The knowledge that he is regarded as a matinee idol was thrust upon him by the receipt of various notes from fair feminine auditors. Every actor who has any pretension for good looks is in receipt of billet-doux from young women thespians. But to quote Mr. Lambert, "It was a new experience for me, for I am not a leading man in the accepted sense of the theatrical term. That is to say, I do not play romantic heroes of the type supposed to appeal to the sentimental feminine. It seems curious that 'Joe Garson' should inspire anything but fear and dislike in the matinee girl's heart—but such is evidently not the case. I can only suppose that the present craze for the 'crook' plays has established a new form of hero."

Among the several letters in more or less sentimental vein recently received by Mr. Lambert, was one which inquired whether the actor could count Turkey Trotting among his accomplishments. Another admitted naively that the writer admired his portrayal of the "crook" Garson, and added that she knew he "was not bad off the stage." If the influx of the "crook" plays continues, something will have to be done to prevent the popularity of the jail-bird type and restore to the matinee girl's favor the hero of yore with his approved virtues and well-manicured hands; for even the perfumed darling of yesterday is to be preferred as a subject for sentimental dreaming to the unshaven, slang-slinging, bad man, who for the nonce seems to have usurped him in the favor of the matinee girl.

The apparatus consists of a frame with a wire strung back and forth at regular intervals. After the dough for the noodles is rolled out on a board it is placed on the wire of the machine and pressed through, and in this manner macaroni or noodles are formed at one operation, all of the same length and thickness.

FRUIT LAXATIVE IF COSTIVE, BILIOUS, HEADACHY—"CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS"
Delicious "regulator" for stomach, liver and bowels for mamma, daddy and children.

If you're headachy, constipated, bilious or stomach is disordered and you want to enjoy the nicest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced, take a tablespoonful of "California Syrup of Figs" tonight, and in the morning all the constipation, poison, bile and clogged-up waste will gently move out of the system without griping and you will feel splendid.

Every member of the family should use this fruit laxative according to directions. It is just as effective for grandpa as it is for baby. It simply can not injure. Even cross, sick, feverish children just love its pleasant taste and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to effect a good "inside cleansing."

For thirty years "California Syrup of Figs" has been recommended by physicians as the ideal stomach, liver and bowel cleanser. Millions of families who are well-informed use nothing else, but recently there has come a flood of spurious fig syrups, so we warn the public to ask plainly at drug stores for a 50 cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs" and see that it is prepared by "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no cheap ers. It has a back any "counterfeit" with contempt.

Somehow he always seemed unusually wild when pitching against Joe Jackson, the Nap slugger. Time and again he would sail a smoky one at Jackson's head and not infrequently he raised a swelling on the dome of the Dixie demon. On one occasion Boehler shot an especially mean shot at Joe's can and the latter after spinning around in the batter's box in an effort to duck the ball inquired of Boehler if he thought he (Jackson) resembled in any way a ten pin, much to the loud voiced amusement of those nearest in the stands.

It has been discovered that among the athletes boxers have the weakest grips and the least strength in the muscles of their hands. A machine devised for the purpose of testing the strength of a person's grip has been used to try out fighters in this regard and it has been found that they fall far short of all other athletes. In fact, in many cases their grips were weaker than normal and weaker than in the case of the average ordinary man. In shaking hands with them this is decidedly noticeable, many of them having hands as weak and soft as a girl's. And how they are able to break bones and throw such dainty mitts is somewhat of a mystery.

Old John Sullivan probably used the first punching bag that was ever seen. Sullivan had been forbidden by authorities to box real people while on exhibition tours and hence a punching bag was devised so that he could show the public his blows. Old John developed the bag and his proficiency at hammering the bag and his successor, Jim Corbett, he-came even more skillful. Jim in fact was one of the first men to make bag punching an art of itself and with Tommy Ryan he was probably never exceeded at it. Old Bob Fitzsimmons added a few tricks to the bag punching performance, one of them being to hit the bag so hard that the cord would break and shoot the bag far out over the heads of the audience. It is surprising, however, how few good bag punchers there are among the fighters of today. Leach Cross is without doubt the cleverest of all present scrappers at banging away at the oval and oddly enough he learned to punch the bag before he became a fighter. As a rule, it's the other way. Fighters, however, are expected to be deft at slugging the bag around, as it is quite an item in their training, although many point out that it tends to make their hitting lighter.

Battling Levinsky, the New York light heavyweight, who has made quite a pretty record in the past year and is regarded as one of the most promising bets in the fight game, is a very busy young man at present. He has been fighting on an average of three times a week, which is being quite active in a pugilistic way. Very few fighters there are who are willing to appear in combat as often as once a week. Levinsky in the early part of his fight career fought under the pseudonym of Barney Williams and as such never seemed to make a great success. However, last winter he fought a draw with Eddie McGoorty, which gave him some little prestige, and he was taken under the managerial wing of Dan Morgan. Morgan suggested to Levinsky that he fight under his real name. Mr. Morgan pointed out that a great many Jews fight bare knuckle prize fights and that it would please them to see a Jew fight under his own name rather than selecting an Irish-sounding alias, as many Hebrews do. And as soon as Levinsky made the change his luck began to change. Since last winter he has made great strides and copied off quite a nice piece of change. His victory over Jim Coffey, where in he gave away quite a bit of weight, made many believe that he is headed straight for the heavyweight crown.

HIGH SCORES MADE BY TWO-MEN TEAMS

Neighbors and Osborn Defeat Abraham and Merrick by Forty-two Pins in Five Game Contest.

A total of twenty-two splits proved the downfall of Abraham and Merrick against Neighbors and Osborn in their five game, total score contest at Miller's alleys last night. Neighbors and Osborn finished with a grand total of 1617, while the losers totaled 1575. Only while the losers were in the game, Neighbors and Osborn have issued a challenge to the winning team and a close combat is expected when the four stars start to knock down the pins in their melee. Only in the fourth game were the losers able to head their opponents, having obtained a bad start in the first frame and losing the next two by seventy-nine pins. Merrick had fourteen splits marked against him and Abraham seven. Merrick won in the first high man, rolling 203 in the fourth session. Osborn finished with the best average, rolling 169.15. Merrick was second with 161.35, Abraham third 161.25 and Neighbors 160.25. Last night's score:

FRATERNITY PLAYERS WIN THEIR REQUESTS

Base-Ball Magnates Have to Give in to Demands of the Players After All Night Session.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—The national base ball commission was in session almost until midnight last night considering the requests of the players' fraternity. When the meeting had been concluded the requests had been approved of the players' fraternity. The point in fifteen while a compromise was noted passed for further consideration. Six requests were considered. These were discussed earlier in the day and passed for further consideration. The first of the six resulted in a compromise when it was decided to insert the word "negotiate" instead of the word "sue" in the rules. This rule now reads: "When a player receives ten days' notice of unconditional release he shall be free to negotiate with any team immediately." AN IDEAL WOMAN'S LAXATIVE. OFFICIAL OPENING OF BASKETBALL IN BADGERDOM FRIDAY

Wisconsin State High School Fives to Start Annual Campaign in Hope of Winning Badger Championship.

The real grind for the Wisconsin state high school basketball fives, and the hard strain on the Lawrence College athletic association, who manage the state tournament, commences on Friday evening of this week. While not all of the quintets will be playing, a good majority of them begin playing off their schedule at that time. Many of the games are countless as far as any elimination is concerned in this state as Alumni games will be played in all quarters of Badgerdom on Friday evening, for the purpose of allowing the various coaches to pick their supposedly strong aggregations. The interest this year is far below that shown a year ago at this time. There must be some reason for such a calamity in the high schools, for in previous years, spirit at the New Year opening was hard to hold down. There is little comment from all over the state at present, although hopes are that things may live up before long. Out of the aggregate number of teams represented at the Appleton tournament last March, but three are heard from at all. Oshkosh has already played the Alumni, and were victorious by a score of 21 to 14. La Crosse have been practicing for the past month with the Y. M. C. A. of that city, and have lost three of four games already played. On Friday evening last they defeated the Alumni in an extra-time struggle, 19 to 17. Janesville is the third to be heard from. This school lines up against their old grad friends Friday evening, January 9th. The balance of the tour-

MURPHY WANTS TO DISPOSE OF SCHULTE, BRESNAHAN, ZIMMERMAN AND LAVENDER.

Schulte.

President Murphy of the Chicago Cubs is anxious to put on the market a number of old-time stars who have outgrown their usefulness in fast company. He has sent a list containing the names of these ball tossers to various clubs in the National league. The names of these men are being kept secret by those who received the list, but Schulte, Bresnahan, Lavender and Zimmerman are reported to be four of the men the Cubs' boss would like to dispose of.

ney five must have taken a slump in material since last season. These teams are Waupun, Menominee, Racine, Ashland and Fond du Lac. By two weeks from now at the latest, the state fives should be nicely started for another season. The La Crosse high school five will play Winona, quintet on Friday evening. Beloit play Rockford highs, in a practice game for both teams.

JANESVILLE BOXING FANS PLAN TO ATTEND BOUTS CLARK GRIFFITH MAY DROP CASHION

Cashion.

Clark Griffith, manager of the Washington team, seriously considers disposing of Cashion, and the young pitcher may go to the minors. Griffith has fourteen pitchers now and will cut to eight by the time the season starts in 1914. The certain ones are Johnson, Boehling, Groom, Engel, Shaw, Gallia and Ayers. The eighth hurler to be retained will be either Cashion, Musser, Harper or Beatty. The others will be disposed of.

EUGENIC STUPIDITY.

The more the eugenics law, said to be the production of Dr. McCarthy's bill, is discussed, the more shallow and useless do its provisions appear. Undoubtedly some of the legislators were led to vote for it on the same superficial ground that they have voted for everything, the statement that McCarthy was behind it, and "it's progressive you know."

Lawyer Rubin shield his pastor into the ring in the Milwaukee Free Press in a defense of the law coupled with a very unjust attack on the medical profession who to a man almost pronounce the law "a piece of nonsense," and utterly impracticable. The medical did, in answer to a masterly analysis of the futility of the law, by Doctor Elmergreen. The doctor comes back upon Rubin in a way that shows him to be a master of the subject and that he knows what he is talking about. Rubin's rank inconsistency is well shown in the following paragraph:

"Both Mr. Rubin and his partner have repeatedly proclaimed from the platform and pulpit that segregation and medical inspection were a failure because no doctor could tell when a person was diseased, and now these very men have revised their opinions overnight and tell us through the press that for a fee of $25 any physician can tell whether the applicant is fit for marriage or not. In my humble opinion it is time that the shoemaker should go back to his last, and the lawyer go back to the bar and forever leave behind him the discussion of the sex question, and forget all about the disrobing of our magdalen before a smug salacious peer public."

There you have it. If the doctors are unable to protect the prostitutes from disease how are they going to protect the wives? How can they be so powerless with one set of women and so wonderfully capable with another?

But the great point made by Dr. Elmergreen, which is the same as that made by Editor Sturtevant of the Wausau Record-Herald is, that the law, though not so intended, is really a promoter of sexual vice, because it places a serious hindrance in the way of marriage. There can be no doubt of this. But after all the law is but another evidence of the gross incompetency of this whole Progressive school of thought, that is responsible for the law. These men are a nest of university cranks, shrewd in only one thing, that of making places for themselves to be aid for by the people. The thin shell of their scheming and false pretense of administrative wisdom, is breaking away at many points, and the eugenics law is one of them.

W. D. Hoard thus discusses the new eugenics law, which is just now creating so much commotion around the state. There are always two sides to a question, and while the law may be perfect, it ought to result in some wholesome corrections. The man who is mentally unbalanced or physically rotten, should not be permitted to marry, and this is what the law attempts to prevent. The public will be better able to judge of its merits and defects after it has been tested.

INDUSTRIAL CONDITIONS.

Mr. J. A. Craig of the Janesville Machine Company, gave the men of the Methodist Brotherhood a very instructive talk last evening on industrial conditions. Mr. Craig is one of the officers of the National Manufacturers' association, and is in close touch with industrial life.

He believes that the year 1914 would show some improvement over last year, as the tariff and currency questions have been settled, and business would adjust itself to new conditions. The greatest menace, in his judgment, was prejudiced public opinion, which encouraged burdensome laws and unjust regulation.

Wisconsin was suffering more than any other state in the union, because of its radical reform attitude, and until a change of sentiment was brought about, it was useless to attempt to secure new industries.

This suggestion is worth thinking about, and the more closely it is analyzed the more apparent it will be that Mr. Craig has sized up the situation correctly.

The state, so well adapted to manufacturing, and naturally so, conservative, has been turned over to a lot of political promoters, and today is a by-word in the industrial world. It is about time we woke up as a people, and redeemed our inheritance.

CIVIL SERVICE.

Civil service, if memory serves, was a product of the Cleveland administration; in fact it was one of the campaign slogans, which could hardly be called an issue, because the republican party was afraid to take it up.

It gained in popularity, after becoming established, and for a dozen years or more, efficient public servants have been retained without regard to political affiliations.

The fact is a little significant that the first break in federal civil service reform comes through Mr. Cleveland's democratic successor, President Woodrow Wilson, and what he isn't doing to the law, is hardly worth relating.

There is some excuse for his action because his party had been out in the cold so long that the demand for a place at the pie counter was loud and persistent. He is serving them well, and if there are any republicans left in office, at the close of his term, it will be because of an oversight.

"To the victor belongs the spoils," is an old saw, and yet it contains the logic of common sense. A civil service protected employee may be all right, and he may be very much of a nuisance to the man responsible for his work, as is often the case.

The national administration, while serving all the people, is accountable to the party which gave it being, and the best public service can only be rendered by subordinates who are in sympathy.

Civil service may have some redeeming features, but it is as full of holes as a skimmer, and the president will add to its popularity by pursuing the policy adopted.

We will soon be in the midst of the political activities of the year 1914, and from the present outlook they will be merry to say the least. First, Janesville is to elect a new member of the city commission and the county chooses a municipal judge. The fun starts early in this section of the state to be followed up by the state campaign later when the weather gets warmer.

Skating is reported as good on some of the lagoons and shallow places on the river, but the skaters are urged to beware of venturing too far out onto the river proper just yet at least.

The local Y. M. C. A. gymnasium opens up opportunity for local athletes to keep in trim for the summer sports during the winter months, besides having lots of fun at the same time.

It looks as though when this new Milwaukee street bridge is finished there is going to be more trouble relative to the re-building of the structures which were destroyed by fire.

If this open winter weather keeps on the small boy or girl who received a sled from Santa Claus will not see the wisdom of the gift.

The first eugenic marriage in Janesville for 1914 was celebrated today. This is the first in Rock county when it comes right down to facts.

The question is asked where are the toboggan slides of the days gone by? The answer is, where is the snow of the years gone by?

If the liquor shops in the city are compelled to close at eleven, why not close down the pool rooms at the same hour?

Here's Deference, Indeed.

The daughter of an English lady of very high rank had some pain in her foot, which her mother asked the governess to be good enough to look at. The latter, after examining it, said, with deference: "If it were not for her ladyship's exalted rank I should say it was a bunion."

On the Spur of the Moment

Retribution.
The curfew tolls the knell of parting day,
The lowing herds wind slowly o'er the lea;
A load of gay joy riders pass that way,
Their speed much greater than it ought to be.

They pass a farmer's rig as in a dream,
They make his horses climb up on the bank;
They make fun of his whiskers and his team,
And give their speed control another yank.

The touring car speeds madly on its way,
Then something happens as it sometimes will;
There's something wrong, but what no one can say,
For full an hour the stubborn thing stands still.

They crank, they oil, they pound,
They softly swear,
They oft inspect the car in every part;
They screw up and unscrew things everywhere,
But nothing they can do will make it start.

The patient farmer and his plodding nag,
Come jogging down the highway leisurely;
No longer doth the chauffeur make his brags,
The farmer is a welcome sight to see.

They plead with him, they argue and entreat;
He listens with an ever-growing sweet;
He then gets a revenge that's mighty sweet—
For twenty-five he pulls them into town.

The Horse and the Auto.
Former Governor Osborn was driving his touring car to Lansing one day when he met a venerable farmer and his wife who were driving a weak-kneed, tottering old horse.

The farmer held up his hand with a warning to Governor Osborn to stop his car. The latter did so and at the same time the farmer's horse stopped and began nibbling grass at the side of the road, paying no attention at all to the automobile.

"What's the matter?" called Governor Osborn. "Why don't you drive by? Your horse ain't afraid of the automobile."

A STATUE

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Slaw."

A STATUE is a picture painted by a sculptor with a cold chisel. When a sculptor wishes to make a portrait of a man he seats him on a pedestal and asks him to look pleasant for six months while he models him in clay. When a good negative has been secured, the sculptor takes a two-ton block of marble and trims it down until it resembles the original—that is, until it resembles the feller as he would look if he had fallen into a flour bin. Carving a statue from marble is very difficult work. If the sculptor carelessly cuts off an ear while absorbed in thought, he cannot put it back. He has to throw away that block of marble and get another.

Very few sculptors can afford to do this because the marble comes from Italy and costs about as much per pound as winter eggs. The great cost of marble has kept many a man out of the sculptor business. When we walk through the capitol at Washington and gaze upon the statuary in that noble but long-suffering building, we cannot help wishing that the price of marble might go much higher.

The ancient Greeks spent most of their time carving statues from marble, and from those which survived we get the idea that about a yard of cheesecloth did the entire Greek nation for clothes. No one objects to the absence of coats and vests on the work of the old Greek sculptors, but when a modern sculptor reproduces George Washington, clad in a long flowing table cloth, or Abraham Lincoln, draped in a bed sheet, it is time to object. This sort of thing may compromise us with posterity. Statues are very plentiful in Europe, especially in Rome, where a man can hardly step out in the spring garden without encountering a 2,000-year-old goddess. A group of handsome and athletic marble statues is a fine thing with which to decorate a public square, and every man should strive to so live that when he dies a grateful city will hire a sculptor to carve him in marble, seated on a Roman chair with Antiquity and Posterity, both extremely good looking, twining their arms about him and saying, "Glad in marble portieres, sitting in his lap."

Most Beautiful Silks:

How far away are we from the days of stiff heavy silks—when a silk dress to be fashionable had to creak and groan at every move and stand out from the figure most rigidly. The woman of today demands that her silks be soft and clinging—and fall in rich, graceful folds. It's a happy tendency and has resulted in our gathering together from home and abroad the most exquisite assortment of wonderfully woven and rarely tinted silks that has ever been displayed in Janesville. You will have a new gown for the coming season—we know that you will not find so wide a range for your selection elsewhere.

Henry Hattam in

"Uncle Tom's Cabin"

Henry Hattam gives an impressive performance as "Uncle Tom" in the magnificent two-part KALEM adaptation of the immortal "UNCLE TOM'S CABIN." Mr. Hattam played this role for many years prior to joining the KALEM forces, and in the motion picture story endows the old slave with all the characteristics that have made Uncle Tom one of the best-loved characters on the stage.

To Clean Walls.
When walls or ceilings are papered with oilcloth or painted, put on wash boiler of water and close doors and windows and boil the water until walls and ceilings are wet with steam. Take a long-handled scrubbing brush or broom, tie a soft rag and wipe your walls. This will save lots of time and trouble.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

ON FINDING PEOPLE.

It is always a pleasure to find things. A little silver pin discovered in the mud at your feet delights you far more than it possibly could if it came to you in any other way. That one dollar bill which you found unconventionally fluttering about in the gutter gave you more happiness than two of the conventional kind in your bill folder.

Some people are always finding things. I know a girl who found three pieces of money and a brooch pin in one week. The largest piece of gold was a dime and the pin was brass, but she seemed to get a prodigious amount of pleasure and pride out of her faculty. Myself, I am not good at finding things. I cannot recall ever finding any piece of money larger than a nickel, and my other finds have been such after possibilities as battered brass hat pins and empty pocket books. I suppose someone must lose things and I suspect that is the part I play in this drama. However, that is not what I started to say. What I set out to announce is that while I am not lucky at finding things, I consider myself extremely lucky at finding people.

What do I mean by that?

Well, suppose I illustrate.

The other day coming home in the trolley car from a gathering of women, circumstances obliged me to sit with a woman whom I would not of myself have chosen for a companion. Doubtless she felt the same about me. She is a woman whom I have known slightly for many years, but have never attempted to know intimately because she always seemed as lifeless and aloof and uninteresting. Somehow I don't at all know just how I happened to touch a spring which made that woman open the book of her life and really talk to me. She told me how she worked in a shop, but had been struggling for years to get an education that would fit her for some more congenial employment. She told me how she worked night after night until midnight, after a long hard day behind the counter, how she suited herself of good clothes to buy books, how she denied herself almost all social intercourse in order to have time for her work. So the lifeless and the aloofness which made her unattractive to me were more than explained; and I had found a new woman.

Again, at an afternoon tea, in a few moments' conversation with a woman who had always seemed an uninteresting old fossil to me, the book Cranford was mentioned. She made a single understanding, illuminating comment about dear Miss Mattie, and instantly the old fossil had disappeared, and I found a clever, witty, humorous woman.

As Stevenson says, "the greatest adventures are not those we go forth to seek." Straight into our commonplace daily life comes many a high adventure of the soul, and not the least of these is—finding people.

know a man pretty well before marrying him.

(5) What a foolish idea.

(6) If her character is openly assailed she can get redress in the courts. If it is just plain gossip, ignore it and lead such a good life that everybody knows the gossips are lying.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Please tell me if hydrogen peroxide is good for taking pimples off the face or body?

Any peroxide of hydrogen is an antiseptic. After you have pricked the pimple and squeezed out the pus, anoint it with peroxide as often as necessary to take out the soreness. The peroxide draws out the poison and prevents further infection.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Do you think a girl of nineteen would look good in a black hat?

(2) Can a black hat be worn with a medium gray coat, the collar and cuffs of coat being of black plush?

(1) I think she might, my dear. You might have a bit of color in the trimming, to make it more suitable for age.

(2) Yes.

SOME BEST RECIPES.

A delicious fruit salad, and an inexpensive one, is made by soaking prunes over night and then cutting them into small pieces with scissors; add diced celery and walnut meats. Mix well with mayonnaise dressing.

Polish Dish.—After boiling sauerkraut one hour, drain it thoroughly; mix with two cups of mashed potatoes and fry three slices of diced bacon with one small onion, and add to the kraut. Let it simmer one minute, then take from the stove. Scrape fine one section of garlic and stir well into the kraut.

Another dish from Poland: For a six-pound pork roast, mince two cloves of garlic and mix with salt and pepper. Rub this well into the meat and let it stand over night to season.

Economical Ragout.—Put four table-spoonsful of butter in a pan to brown. Fry brown a two and a half pound steak cut two inches thick; cut up four onions, two tomatoes and one green pepper. Pile on top and around the meat. Season to taste. Fill the pan with water and simmer slowly until thoroughly tender.

Baked Oysters and Macaroni.—Cook a half cupful of broken bits of macaroni in boiling water until tender. Drain, and put a layer of macaroni into a well buttered baking dish; dust well with salt and paprika, then put on a layer of well washed oysters, salt pepper and a few bits of butter. Then add another layer of macaroni and oysters, using just two layers of oysters; never more, for they do not cook well if too many in the dish. Pour over a cup of rich white sauce, sprinkle with buttered crumbs and bake until the oysters are plump and curled. A half hour in a rather hot oven.

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

When the room reeks with tobacco smoke set a bowl of cold water somewhere in the room and the odor will soon be absorbed.

When the wooden floor is left over cut in thin strips about an inch wide, sprinkle with butter, sugar, and cinnamon, roll up like jelly roll and bake a light brown.

For stains upon the fingers or nails, use peroxide of hydrogen juice.

Camphor Oil.—Melt two ounces of purified lard tallow and beat into it a piece of gum camphor as large as a walnut.

When calling a man finds places for his hat and coat, a girl never helps him with them.

THE TABLE.

Baked Oysters.—Select nice large oysters. Wash and scrub the shells free from sand. Put them into a baking pan and bake in a hot oven until the shells open. Carefully remove upper shell. Put a slice of butter on each oyster, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and serve in the under shells.

Steak of Mutton and Peas.—Cut three pounds of lean mutton into dice. In a pot fry six slices of fat salt pork when crisp remove them with a skimmer and lay in the grease the mutton, dredged with flour, and half an onion sliced. Cook for five minutes, then cover with cold water and simmer until the meat is very tender. Remove the meat, lay it on a platter, sprinkle with salt and pepper and keep it hot while you thicken the gravy in the pot with brown roux, and season to taste with a tablespoonful of tomato catsup, a teaspoonful of kitchen bouquet and salt and pepper to taste. Now add the contents of a can of peas. These peas should have been drained, and exposed to the air for an hour. Bring the stew to a boil, cook for five minutes, return the meat to the pot for a minute, then pour all into the hot platter.

Apple and Cress Salad.—Pare and cut into small pieces four medium-sized apples. Pour over this a French dressing. Pick carefully the leaves from a bunch of cress. Arrange around the outside of the salad dish and heap the apples in the center of the dish.

Marshmallow Layer Cake.—Cream a cupful of butter with two cupfuls of sugar, and when smooth and light add the well-beaten yolks of six eggs, a cupful of milk and two cupfuls of prepared flour, alternately with the stiffened whites of the six eggs. If the batter is too thin, add a little more flour. Flavor with vanilla and bake in layer tins.

Buttermilk Croutons.—Into a cupful of butter and a half of oil, rub three-quarters of a cupful of butter and two eggs, half a teaspoonful of soda dissolved in a tablespoonful of hot water, and a cupful and a half of buttermilk. Now sift in enough flour to make a tender dough, roll out and fry.

White Barley Soup.—Soak a cupful of barley for several hours in enough water to cover it; then boil in a quart of water until tender and add a small onion, a teaspoonful of onion juice, a tablespoonful of minced parsley and with celery salt and white pepper to taste. Thicken a pint of scalding milk with a white roux, pour the hot soup slowly upon this and serve.

A few home remedies for simple ailments that have been tried and not found wanting.

As you value your own and your family's digestion don't serve tea with fish. The tannic acid hardens the fiber and makes it indigestible. It should not be mixed with any form of fish, shell-fish or the articulated animals like lobsters and crabs; food and soft shelled crabs, for example, are a combination that should be avoided by persons not possessing the digestive apparatus of an ostrich.

FORMER JANSVILLE GIRL

FAMOUS AS AN ARTIST

Miss Helen Hardy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Hardy, former residents of this city, has achieved considerable fame in the "south" conduct of a high school at Morrisville, Tennessee, after success in demonstrating by the fact that a collection of her work was awarded first prize at the National Conservation exposition.

While residing in Jansville, Mr. and Mrs. Hardy resided on East street.

About ten years ago the family moved to Chattanooga, Tennessee, and at present reside in Morrisville, where Mr. Hardy is publisher of the Morrisville Weekly Sun. While in Jansville he was editor and publisher of the Jansville Republican. His daughter has studied art under eminent instructors and her success has been noteworthy.

The compensation for printer.

The smell of printers' ink is a curious one, and it has a subtle medicinal effect. Men employed in factories where it is made never contract consumption, or so a medical lecturer said recently. And in tropical countries it is a well known fact that printers always escape yellow fever, however derelict it may happen to be raging in the neighborhood.

Heart and Home Problems

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am twenty-one years old. Have kept steady company with a Catholic fellow of twenty-eight for sixteen months. He has asked me to marry him. I care quite a lot for him and would not hesitate, if he did not insist upon me leaving my church and becoming a member of his church. I know it would hurt my mother, who has never had any change and, in fact, there is not a one in my family who proves of it. Do you think he is asking too much of me, knowing that I am a communicant of a Protestant church—I know he thinks a lot of me.

He says that my people will forgive me after we are married and that his people will think the world of me, for he is the only son I have never met his mother or father, but have met some of his sisters.

IMPATIENT.

If you should marry this man, differing in religion, you will neither one be happy. If you really love each other, and not join his church, or get him to join your church? After all, we are all going to the same place, and the different churches are only the different roads of getting there. Many people are not aware of this way of looking at religion, but I think God is too great to bother with our little religious differences. He simply judges whether or not we have made the best of our lives on this earth.

I agree with your young man that your parents will forgive you if they see you living happily even though you have changed your church. You can be good and happy no matter what church you belong to.

Yes, I think the young man loves you.

Thompson: We are chums, seventeen and fifteen.

(1) Are we too young to keep company with young men?

(2) Can a girl of seventeen be really in love?

(3) Is it right to go to plays, parties and dances or are we too young?

(4) Is three months long enough to keep company with a boy before marriage?

(5) Will one be an old maid if she likes cats?

(6) When a girl is talked about, what is the best thing to do about it? Keep quiet or make a fuss?

RAINBOW AND REDWING.

Banish the "Blues!"

If you have that depressed feeling it's more than likely that your blood is out of order—impoverished or poisoned.

There is only one thing that will alter your present condition—that's to restore your stomach to normal health and strength. For a weak or diseased stomach cannot make good blood. If your digestion is bad your food will not make the good blood which nourishes body, brain, heart and nerve.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

helps the stomach to do its work naturally and properly. Stimulates the liver. The system is freed from poison. The blood is purified. Every organ is rejuvenated. Instead of the "Blues," you feel fit and strong, equal to any task or up to any pleasure.

This great remedy has proved its worth year after year for over forty years. Let it prove it for you. Sold by medicine dealers in tablet or liquid form or send for trial box by mail.

Miss Ada Peterson has returned to Whitewater after spending her vacation at the home of her parents.

Miss Carrie Rollins was an Oregon visitor Saturday.

Charles Quayle of Gwinnett, Michigan is a guest at the Rev. J. W. Barnett home.

Miss Jessie Waite was an Oregon visitor Wednesday.

Miss Sadie Ames returned Saturday to Fond du Lac after a visit at the home of her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Curless and little daughter were Evansville visitors Sunday.

"Everyday Go to Church Day" was observed Sunday at the M. E. church. The audiences were large at both services and special music was rendered by Clayton Quayle of Gwinnett, Michigan.

A daughter was born Sunday to Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Miller of Janesville.

Mrs. G. E. Waite has been ill for several days.

Prof. and Mrs. A. J. Berge have returned from a visit with relatives at Hillsboro.

Word has been received of the birth of a son to Mr. and Mrs. H. B. De Jean of Eugene, Oregon.

Miss Anna Roberts was a Janesville visitor Saturday.

ALBANY

Albany, Jan. 5.—A. R. Bennett transacted business in Monroe today.

Misses Tella Griffin and Shirley Roberts who are attending a state normal in Whitewater, returned to their studies this morning.

Mrs. Thomas Gravenor was a Janesville visitor this morning.

John Wood and Walter Wood, Maurice Barton and Miss Clarissa Wood, returned to the university for work this morning.

C. S. Walter was in Brodhead today.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hollum and son spent New Year's Day with her sister, Mrs. F. E. Flint.

The funeral of Miss Dorothy Crawford is to be held from the Methodist church tomorrow afternoon. Deceased was the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Crawford of this place. She was about eighteen years of age and a sophomore in the Albany high school.

Miss Dollie will be mourned by all of Albany, for she was a favorite in school, in the M. E. church, where she was always at her place as organist in the choir, and by all who knew her. She had been sick a number of weeks and her death came as a result of typhoid fever setting in. She leaves, besides her father and mother, a younger brother. The bereaved parents have the heartfelt sympathy of the whole community.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Flint of near Brodhead spent New Year's Day with his parents.

Mrs. Alfred Eldred of Chicago returned to her home today after spending the holidays with her father, Francis Howard.

Miss Cecil Whalen spent Friday in Janesville.

About fifty people partook of the splendid dinner served at the Baptist church Saturday, it being the annual ball call.

While visiting her daughter in Belleville, Mrs. S. A. Luce was burned badly about the face when the coal in the furnace exploded as she opened the door. She was able to return home last week.

Miss Grace Bartlett of Attica visited relatives here during the week.

A. A. Barton has sold his residence property to E. E. Brewer and will give possession the last of March.

The mothers' meeting of the W. C. T. U. to be held tomorrow is postponed a week on account of the funeral of Miss Dorothy Crawford.

Mrs. Jane Lewis has sold her property in the eastern part of Albany to Mr. Case, who has sold his home in the south part of town to Sylvester Purinton. All possession will be given March 1st.

Marie Croake returned to her school duties in Dubuque, Iowa, last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Sylvester and daughter and Mrs. Fulton spent New Year's day in Beloit.

Rufus Davis and family are packing their goods and expect to move to Albion soon.

Heart to Heart Talks

By CHARLES N. LURIE

THE BREAK OF THE GAME.

Two of the big college football teams were engaged in a game. It was one of the important games of the season. One of the teams, which had been thought before the game to be much weaker than its opponent, was "carrying the other eleven off its feet."

It was time for the stronger team to "show something" if it did not want to be beaten badly, although up to that time there had been no scoring by either side.

Then came "the break of the game."

The right foot of the best player on the stronger eleven got a chance to kick the ball. Swinging truly and steadily, upward and outward, it hit the ball fair and square. The ball flew over the goal post. The only points that were made in the game were scored right then and there.

The "break of the game" came for the stronger eleven. It generally does come in that direction.

In every game there is a "break." In greater affairs it is called the "crisis," but the principle which governs it is the same. It might be worded thus:

Any game will turn in time toward the side which is better prepared by training to seize upon a momentary advantage.

In every life the "break" comes.

As an old familiar saying has it, "Opportunity knocks once at every man's door." The answering of the knock, the opening of the hospitable door, the crossing of the threshold by Opportunity—such are the signs and seals of the taking advantage of the "break."

When it comes, boot the ball over the goal posts of your desire!

Of no avail is the "break" which comes to the man who is not prepared therefor. It would be better for him if it never revealed itself for its coming brings only the acid regrets of lost opportunity.

Other opportunities may come, for there is much doubt about the accuracy of the theory that "opportunity comes only once," but it will not be the same thing.

And when it comes the man will be older.

As the football player trains for his chance many weary months before he gets the coveted place on the eleven of his college, so should every man seeking an honorable place in life put himself in training to take advantage of the "break in the game" when it shall come to him.

ORFORDVILLE

Orfordville, Jan. 7.—Several of the students of the village school are putting in the winter with neighboring schools during their vacation.

The Newark Mutual Fire Insurance company held their annual meeting at the opera house on Tuesday afternoon. There was a good attendance and the reports of the officers showed that the company is in a flourishing condition.

K. K. Synagard of Beloit is spending a few days with his daughter, Mrs. N. S. Gravenor.

A. C. Grander was visiting in the bank on Tuesday, his services being required on account of the large amount of tobacco being recovered in the village on that day.

On Tuesday night the local lodge of Robekahs met and installed their newly elected officers. Mr. Preller, district deputy, was present and did the work.

Rev. W. K. Nappeth will leave for a few days' outing on Thursday. He will visit his old home at Decorah, Iowa.

The streets of the village presented a lively appearance on Tuesday by reason of the large amount of tobacco that was being received. T. B. Earl of Edgerton, received and loaded two cars, and John Soulmam of Janesville received and loaded one.

CLINTON

Clinton, Jan. 6.—Mrs. F. C. Bradley and son, Gaylord, were in Beloit Friday.

Mrs. A. E. Frendall and son, Howard, were transacting business in Beloit Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Drake spent New Year's at Delavan with Mrs. Drake's brother and family.

F. C. Bradley added another chapter to his long list of ill luck yesterday. When he returned home after the early morning delivery, he found one of his horses had got its head fast and eventually hung itself, being dead when Mr. Bradley found it. The horse was good one, and Bradley had recently been offered $250 for it. Mr. Bradley certainly has had more than his share of fatalities with his horses and cows.

The two Clinton banks held their annual stockholders' meeting today. Both institutions have had a prosperous year and are steadily gaining.

Mrs. Frank J. Barker is confined to her bed by illness, trained nurse Mrs. Chant is caring for her.

Mrs. McAdam is spending a few days in Beloit combining business and pleasure.

Two of Clinton's fairest daughters got into an altercation. New Year's night which ended in a fisty bout, short and fierce, the sequel of which was a trial in Judge Cleveland's court yesterday morning. No great damage was done.

Tonight is the grand opening of the Hotel Syrian, which will be celebrated by a fine banquet from 6 o'clock to 9 o'clock, and then a grand ball at Drake's hall. Smiley's orchestra of Beloit is engaged for both events. Host H. H. Reeder expects a good crowd.

The New Year's gathering, dinner and business meetings of church and society at the Congregational church New Year's day was one of the most successful events ever held by that church. It was just a great big family reunion and brought nearly the entire membership together, nearly 200 sat down to the tables. It was a gigantic undertaking for the ladies on the committee but they feel amply repaid for their arduous labors by the entire success of the affair. Too much praise can not be given them.

The already close, brotherly feeling of the church was augmented and cemented more firmly. It was voted to have the same thing next year.

"Who said there was anything against you, Joe?" Burke rejoined, in a voice that was genially chiding.

"Say, inspector, if you've got anything on me—"

"What's the matter with you today, Joe? You seem nervous." Still, the official kept on with his writing.

"No, I ain't nervous," Garson cried, with a feverish effort to appear calm.

"Why, what makes you think that? But this ain't exactly the place you'd pick out as a pleasant one to spend the morning."

He was silent for a little, trying with all his strength to regain his self control, but with small success.

Burke believed that his opportunity was come. His hand slipped into the pocket where was the pistol, and he stared at Garson fiercely, and spoke with a rush of the words:

"Why did you kill Eddie Griggs?" "I didn't kill him!" The reply was quick enough, but it came weakly.

Again, Garson was forced to wet his lips with a dry tongue, and to swallow painfully. "I tell you, I didn't kill him," he repeated at last, with more force.

"You killed him last night—with this!" Burke cried, viciously. On the instant, the pistol leaped into view, pointed straight at Garson. "Why?" the inspector shouted. "Come on, now! Why?"

"I didn't tell you!" Garson was growing stronger, since at last the crisis was upon him. He got to his feet with the swiftness of movement and sprang close to the desk. He bent his head forward challengingly, to meet the glare of his accuser's eyes.

There passed many seconds, while the two men battled in silence, with warring anger left in the end it was the murderer who triumphed.

Suddenly, Burke dropped the pistol into his pocket, and looked back in his chair. His gaze fell away from the man confronting him. In the same instant, the rigidity of Garson's form relaxed, and he straightened slowly.

"Oh, well," Burke exclaimed amiably. "I didn't really think you did, but I wasn't sure, so I had to take a chance. You understand, don't you, Joe?"

"Sure, I understand," Garson replied, with an amiability equal to the inspector's own.

Burke pressed the buzzer as the agreed signal to Cassidy. "Where did you say Mary Turner was last night?"

At the question, all Garson's fears for the woman rushed back on him with appalling force.

"I don't know where she was," he exclaimed doubtfully. He realized his blunder even as the words left his lips, and sought to correct it as best he might. "Why, yes, I do, too," he went on, as if assailed by sudden memory.

"I dropped into her place kind of late, and they said she'd gone to bed—headache, I guess. Yes, she was home, of course. She didn't go out of the house all night." His insistence on the point was of itself suspicious, but eagerness to protect her dulled his wits.

"Know anything about Gilder?"

"No, you can't help me," he said simply. "My time has come, Mary. And I can save you a lot of trouble."

"He's right there," Burke ejaculated. "We've got him cold. So what's the use of dragging you two into it?"

"Then they go clear?" Garson exclaimed eagerly. "They ain't even to be called as witnesses?"

"Not a thing," was the earnest answer. The inner door opened, and Mary Turner entered the office. Garson with difficulty suppressed the cry of distress that rose to his lips. For a few moments the silence was unbroken. Then presently Burke by a gesture directed the girl to advance toward the center of the room. As she obeyed he himself went a little toward the door, and when it opened again and Dick Gilder appeared he interposed to check the young man's rush forward as his gaze fell on his bride, who stood regarding him with sad eyes.

Then, while still that curious, dynamic silence endured, Cassidy came briskly into the office.

"Say, chief," the detective said rapidly, "they've squeaked."

"Squeaked, eh? Do they tell the same story?" And then when the detective had answered in the affirmative he went on speaking in tones ponderous with self-complacency.

"I was right, then, after all—right all the time. Good enough." Of a sudden his voice boomed somberly. "Mary Turner, I want you for the murder of—"

Garson's rush halted the sentence. He had leaped forward. His face was rigid. He broke on the inspector's words with a gesture of fury. His voice came in a hiss:

"That's a lie! I did it!"

CHAPTER XIX.
Anguish and Bliss.

GARSON shouted his confession without a second of reflection. But the result must have been the same, had he taken years of thought. Between him and her as the victim of the law, there could be no hesitation for choice. The prime necessity was to save her, Mary, from the toils of the law, that were closing around her. For himself, in the days to come, there would be a ghastly dread, but there would never be regret over the cost of saving her. He had saved her from the waters—he would save her until the end, as far as the power in him might lie.

The suddenness of it all held Mary voiceless for long seconds. She was frozen with horror of the event. When, at last, words came, they were a frantic prayer of protest.

"No, Joe! No! Don't talk—don't talk!"

"Joe has talked," Burke said, significantly. "He did it to protect me," she stated, earnestly.

The inspector dismissed such futile argument. As the doorman appeared in answer to the buzzer, he directed that the stenographer be summoned at once.

"We'll have the confession in due form," he remarked, smiling pleasantly on the three before him.

"He's not going to confess," Mary insisted, with spirit.

But Burke disregarded her completely, and spoke mechanically to Garson the formal warning required by the law.

"You are hereby cautioned that anything you say may be used against you." Then, as the stenographer entered, he went on with lively interest.

"Now, Joe!"

Yet once again, Mary protested, a little wildly.

"Don't speak, Joe! Don't say a word till we can get a lawyer for you!"

The man met her pleading eyes steadily, and shook his head in refusal. "It's no use, my girl," Burke broke in harshly. "I told you, I'd get you. I'm going to try you and Garson, and the whole gang for murder—yes, every one of you. And you, Gilder," he continued, lowering on the young man who had defied him, so obstinately, "you'll go to the house of detention as a material witness." He turned his gaze to Garson again, and spoke authoritatively: "Come on, now, Joe!"

Garson went a step toward the desk and spoke decisively.

"If I come through, you'll let her go—and him?" he added as an afterthought, with a nod toward Dick Gilder.

"We'll get the best lawyers in the country," Mary persisted desperately. "We'll save you, Joe—we'll save you!"

Garson regarded the distraught girl with wistful eyes. But there was no trace of yielding in his voice as he replied, though he spoke very sorrowfully.

"No, you can't help me," he said simply. "My time has come, Mary. And I can save you a lot of trouble."

"He's right there," Burke ejaculated. "We've got him cold. So what's the use of dragging you two into it?"

"Then they go clear?" Garson exclaimed eagerly. "They ain't even to be called as witnesses?"

"Not a thing," was the earnest answer. The inner door opened, and Mary Turner entered the office. Garson with difficulty suppressed the cry of distress that rose to his lips. For a few moments the silence was unbroken. Then presently Burke by a gesture directed the girl to advance toward the center of the room. As she obeyed he himself went a little toward the door, and when it opened again and Dick Gilder appeared he interposed to check the young man's rush forward as his gaze fell on his bride, who stood regarding him with sad eyes.

Then, while still that curious, dynamic silence endured, Cassidy came briskly into the office.

"Squeaked, eh? Do they tell the same story?" And then when the detective had answered in the affirmative he went on speaking in tones ponderous with self-complacency.

"I was right, then, after all—right all the time. Good enough." Of a sudden his voice boomed somberly. "Mary Turner, I want you for the murder of—"

Garson's rush halted the sentence. He had leaped forward. His face was rigid. He broke on the inspector's words with a gesture of fury. His voice came in a hiss:

"That's a lie! I did it!"

"You're on!" Burke agreed. "Then, here goes!" Burke cried, and he looked expectantly toward the stenographer.

"My name is Joe Garson."

"Alias?" Burke suggested.

"Alias nothing!" came the sharp retort. "Garson's my moniker. I shot English Eddie, because he was a skunk and a stool pigeon, and he got just what was coming to him." Vituperation beyond the mere words beat in his voice now.

"Now, now," Burke objected, severely. "We can't take a confession like that."

Garson shook his head—spoke with fiercer hatred.

"Because he was a skunk and a stool pigeon," he repeated. "Have you got it?" And then, as the stenographer nodded assent, he went on, less violently: "I croaked him just as he was going to call the bulls with a police whistle. I used a gun with smokeless powder. It had a Maxim silencer on it, so that it didn't make any noise."

Garson paused, and the set despair of his features lightened a little. Into his voice came a tone of exultation indescribably ghastly. It was born of the eternal egotism of the criminal, fattening vanity in gloating over his ingenuity for evil. He stared at Burke with a quizzical grin crooking his lips.

"Say," he exclaimed, "I'll bet it's the first time a guy was ever croaked with one of them things! Ain't it?"

The inspector nodded affirmation. "Some class to that, eh?" Garson demanded, still with that gawsome air of boasting. "I got the gun and the Maxim silencer thing off a fence in Boston," he explained. "Say, that thing cost me $20, and it's worth every cent of the money. Why, they'll remember me as the first to spring one of them things, won't they?"

"They sure will, Joe," the inspector conceded.

"Nobody knew I had it," Garson continued, dropping his braggy manner abruptly.

"At the words, Mary started, and her lips moved as if she were about to speak.

"Nobody knew I had it—nobody in the world," he declared. "And nobody had anything to do with the killing but me."

Was there any bad feeling between you and Eddie Griggs?"

"Never all that very minute. Then I learned the truth about what he'd framed up with you." The speaker's voice reverted to its former fierceness in recollection of the treachery of one whom he had trusted.

"He was a stool pigeon, and I hated him! That's all, and it's enough. And it's all true, so help me God!"

The inspector nodded dismissal to the stenographer, with an air of relief.

"That's all, Williams," he said heavily. "He'll sign it as soon as you've transcribed the notes."

Then as the stenographer left the room Burke turned his gaze on the woman, who stood there in a posture of complete dejection, her white, anguished face downcast. There was triumph in the inspector's voice as he addressed her, for his professional pride was full fed by this victory over his foes.

"Young woman," Burke said briskly. "It's just like I told you. You can't beat the law. Garson thought he could—and now—" He broke off, with a wave of his hand toward the man who had just sentenced himself to death in the electric chair.

"That's right," Garson agreed, with somber intensity. His eyes were grown clouded again now, and his voice dragged leaden. "That's right, Mary," he repeated, dully, after a little pause. "You can't beat the law!" He hesitated a little, then went on, with a certain curious embarrassment. "And this same old law says a woman must stick to her man."

The girl's eyes met his with passionate sorrow in their misty depths. Garson gave a significant glance toward Dick Gilder, then his gaze returned to her. There was a smoldering despair in that look. There were, as well, an entreaty and a command.

"Go," he went on, "you must go along with him, Mary. Won't you? It's the best thing to do."

The girl could not answer. There was a clutch on her throat just then, which would not relax at the call of her will.

Of a sudden, an inspiration came to him; a means to snap the tension, to create a diversion wholly efficacious. He would turn to his boasting again, would call upon his vanity, which he knew well as his chief folly, and make it serve as the foil against his love.

"You want to cut out worrying about me," he counseled, bravely. "Why, I ain't worrying any myself—not a little bit! You see, it's something new. I've pulled off. Nobody ever put over anything like it before."

He faced Burke with a grin of gloating again.

"I'll bet there'll be a lot of stuff in the newspapers about this, and my picture, too, in most of 'em! What?"

The man's manner imposed on Burke, though Mary felt the torment that his vaingloriousness was meant to mask.

"Say," Garson continued to the inspector. "If the reporters want any pictures of me could I have some new ones taken? The one you've got of me in the gallery is over ten years old. I've taken off my beard since then. Can I have a new one?"

"Sure you can, Joe. I'll send you up to the gallery right now."

"Immense!" Garson cried boisterously. He moved toward Dick Gilder, walking with a faint suggestion of swagger, to cover the nervous tremor that had seized him.

CONFIRMED PROOF

Residents of Janesville Cannot Doubt What Has Been Twice Proved.

In gratitude for relief from aches and pains of bad backs—from distressing kidney ills—thousands have publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. Residents of Janesville, who so testified years ago, now say the results were permanent. This testimony doubly proves the worth of Doan's Kidney Pills to Janesville kidney sufferers.

Mrs. Mohns, 310 N. Academy St., Janesville, Wis., says: "I was suffering from an attack of kidney trouble. I went to the People's Drug Co., and got a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills. One or two boxes cured the ailments. I haven't had any sign of the trouble since. Others of my family have used Doan's Kidney Pills with very satisfactory results."

A LASTING CURE.

On July 2, 1913, when Mrs. Mohns was interviewed she said: "I haven't had any trouble from my kidneys since Doan's Kidney Pills cured me several years ago. I willingly give you permission to continue publishing my former statement."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Dinner Stories

"You are absolutely impossible," said the mistress of the house, who was a notorious fault-finder. "I thought you said you were a lady's maid."

"And so I was, ma'am," calmly replied the girl, "until I came to work for you."

David Lloyd-George has been telling some stories bearing on his own unpopularity with his political opponents. One of them is about a man who was presented with a testimonial for saving some one from drowning. The hero modestly deprecated the praises showered upon him.

"Really, I have done very little to deserve this reward," he said. "I saw the man struggling in the water and, as no one else was by, I knew he would be drowned if I didn't save him. So I jumped in, swam out to him, turned him over to make sure that he wasn't Lloyd-George, and then pulled him out."

Strength Restored by Vinol.

Strength and even life itself depends upon nourishment and proper assimilation of food, and unless digestion is good the whole body suffers.

Mrs. C. W. Busby of Moundsville, W. Va., says: "For years I was in a weakened, run-down condition, and I could not find anything that would help me. Vinol was recommended and I tried it. Before I finished the first bottle I was better. I continued its use and am as well as ever. I have gotten several neighbors to take Vinol with the same result."

We know the great power of Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic without oil, in building up all weakened, run-down persons, and for chronic coughs, colds, and pulmonary trouble, and that is why we guarantee to return your money if it does not help you. Smith Drug Co., Drugists, Janesville, Wis.

P. S. Our Sazo Salve is truly wonderful for Eczema. We guarantee it.
